The Department of History offers:

- History, M.A.
- Social Studies Post-Baccalaureate Certification

The Program

HISTORY

HIST 500: 3 s.h.
U.S. History 1815-1919
An intensive readings and discussion course focusing on the major issues and interpretations for the period 1815-1919. Offered every third semester.

HIST 501: 3 s.h.
U.S. History, Beginnings-1815
An intensive readings and discussion course focusing on the major issues and interpretations of early American history. Offered every third semester.

HIST 502: 3 s.h.
U.S. History 1919 to present
An intensive readings and discussion course focusing on the major issues and interpretations for the period since World War I. Offered every third semester.

HIST 503: 3 s.h.
Age of Revolution, 1789-1914
An intensive readings and discussion course focusing on the major issues and interpretations of European history from the French Revolution to the First World War. Offered every third semester.

HIST 504: 3 s.h.
Modern Europe, 1914-Present
An intensive readings and discussion course focusing on the major issues and interpretations of recent European history. Offered periodically.

HIST 505: 3 s.h.
Topics in Regional History
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 506: 3 s.h.
Topics in Historical Research
Essential to the practice of history are the ability to think historically, familiarity with its basic sources and an understanding of past historiographical traditions. This course seeks to offer instruction in the traditions of history writing that shaped and contextualized the present historiographical tradition, as well as provide training in the execution of various methods of historical research and writing. Offered annually.

HIST 507: 3 s.h.
Seminar in European History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 508: 3 s.h.
Seminar in Regional History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 509: 3 s.h.
Co-Op Ed Experience in History
Co-Op Ed Experience in History

HIST 510: 3 s.h.
Tpc in US Hist:
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in the U.S. history of the United States. Offered annually.

HIST 511: 3 s.h.
Tpc in Eur Hist:
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 512: 3 s.h.
Topics in Regional History
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 513: 3 s.h.
Historiography and Historical Research
Essential to the practice of history are the ability to think historically, familiarity with its basic sources and an understanding of past historiographical traditions. This course seeks to offer instruction in the traditions of history writing that shaped and contextualized the present historiographical tradition, as well as provide training in the execution of various methods of historical research and writing. Offered annually.

HIST 514: 3 s.h.
Smnr in US Hist:
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in United States history. Offered annually.

HIST 515: 3 s.h.
Seminar in European History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 516: 3 s.h.
Seminar in Regional History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 517: 3 s.h.
Co-Op Ed Experience in History
Co-Op Ed Experience in History

HIST 518: 3 s.h.
Topics in Regional History
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 519: 3 s.h.
Historiography and Historical Research
Essential to the practice of history are the ability to think historically, familiarity with its basic sources and an understanding of past historiographical traditions. This course seeks to offer instruction in the traditions of history writing that shaped and contextualized the present historiographical tradition, as well as provide training in the execution of various methods of historical research and writing. Offered annually.

HIST 520: 3 s.h.
Smnr in US Hist:
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in United States history. Offered annually.

HIST 521: 3 s.h.
Seminar in European History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 522: 3 s.h.
Seminar in Regional History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 523: 3 s.h.
Co-Op Ed Experience in History
Co-Op Ed Experience in History

HIST 524: 3 s.h.
Topics in Regional History
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 525: 3 s.h.
Historiography and Historical Research
Essential to the practice of history are the ability to think historically, familiarity with its basic sources and an understanding of past historiographical traditions. This course seeks to offer instruction in the traditions of history writing that shaped and contextualized the present historiographical tradition, as well as provide training in the execution of various methods of historical research and writing. Offered annually.

HIST 526: 3 s.h.
Smnr in US Hist:
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in United States history. Offered annually.

HIST 527: 3 s.h.
Seminar in European History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 528: 3 s.h.
Seminar in Regional History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 529: 3 s.h.
Co-Op Ed Experience in History
Co-Op Ed Experience in History

HIST 530: 3 s.h.
Topics in Regional History
A topical readings course devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.

HIST 531: 3 s.h.
Historiography and Historical Research
Essential to the practice of history are the ability to think historically, familiarity with its basic sources and an understanding of past historiographical traditions. This course seeks to offer instruction in the traditions of history writing that shaped and contextualized the present historiographical tradition, as well as provide training in the execution of various methods of historical research and writing. Offered annually.

HIST 532: 3 s.h.
Smnr in US Hist:
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in United States history. Offered annually.

HIST 533: 3 s.h.
Seminar in European History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in European history. Offered annually.

HIST 534: 3 s.h.
Seminar in Regional History
A research seminar devoted to selected issues and problems in regional and comparative history. Offered periodically.
HIST 691: 1-3 s.h.
Independent Study

HIST 699: 3 s.h.
Thesis:

Thesis: